Kansas City Movie Premier – “The Wind That Shakes The Barley”

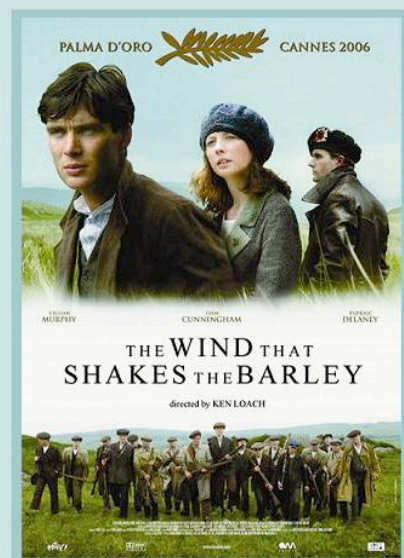

A benefit for the Jennifer Ireland Foundation

Kansas City, MO – A Hollywood-style fight for freedom and a fight for freedom from cancer blends together at the Kansas City movie premier of “The Wind that Shakes the Barley,” May 10, at the Tivoli Cinemas in Westport.

The creative black tie event benefits the Jennifer Ireland Foundation. The foundation honors Jennifer, who died in 2007 of colon cancer, by providing financial grants to cancer patients and their families.

Tickets are $100 and can be purchased on the Jennifer Ireland Foundation Web site, www.jenniferirelandfoundation.com. A limited number of tickets are available at Browne's Irish Market, Eddie Delahunt's Cafe &, Doherty & Sullivan's Irish Goods and The Trouser Mouse Bar & Grill.

“The Wind that Shakes the Barley,” winner of the Best Film at the 2006 Cannes Film Festival, is a powerful political saga that chronicles the rise of the Irish Republican Army as seen from the perspectives of two brothers participating in the revolution. The picture was directed by Ken Loach, whose previous movie, A Fond Kiss, landed on this critic's 10 Best List for 2004.
